Dear Readers:

THE VILLAIN - Summary

This thread reminds us of one of Confucius' analects â€“ "Do not do to others what you do not want them to do to you." It is all about behavioral principles.

The key element is that a person attempting to live by this rule treats all people with consideration. It covers a wide range of world cultures, and is a standard to which different cultures use to resolve conflicts.

It encompasses the ethics of one's rights to just treatment, and a responsibility to ensure justice for others based on trust and community. So, treat others with respect, compassion and affection, and be repaid the same in return.

EPILOG

Actually, one who is adept in elaborate calculations and spends time on wicked tricks and ploys will eventually find his/her mental efforts on devious and irresponsible schemes go down the drain. A Chinese poetry written during the Song Dynasty has this to say:

"A cheerful shepherd boy, riding on an ox, blowing a sonorous tune with his flute can be heard in the distant paddy field. Merchants of Chang An scheming to get rich and famous do not enjoy a carefree life as the shepherd boy does" â€“.. It's like saying â€“ Heaven weighs humankind's wishes and decides what bona-fide wishes are granted.
