Hi Lily,

A well written article, I especially agree about one making mistake once but not twice. Life is about seeking answer for oneself in order make one's life worth living. We learn through our mistakes but that's life, from the mistake/s that one makes, we correct ourselves and look forward to one's future with great anticipation.

To be happy with one's life...One has to work hard to earn the respect of others and at the same time respect oneself. When you earn the respects from others....you will be happy that you have made a better world for others and your own self.

Life has is a never ending journey, but just memories as we live through the path of our lives. Cherish them when we reach to a stage where we can no longer remember much but our memories.

So Lily, live your life to the fullest. Add Oil.....
