Wow, Dagege...

I would meet You even in MÄ¼nchen or Budapest (maybe in Wien, at the Marathon) - but somehow I have to "fix" my situation first... It takes a "Baron MÄ¼nchhausen act" now... I speak of the one when he grabbed himself by the hair and pulled 'imslef out of the water, ha-ha...

Just two weeks ago I reread "Crime and Punishment". I read it when I was a teenager, some 25 years ago - it had a great influence on me. In many respects it surprised me now: I could have sworn it takes place in winter... The reverse: it is hot summer, and it is often stressed that there is rotten, deep smells around.

Anyway, I hate living writers... I don't think I could have a decent conversation with any...

Danke!

Hey there ...

I just found a place which seems to be very interesting.

Let's meet once in St. Petersburg by Dima Grigorjew. ;)

He works under the earth in an old heating room ...

A meeting place for writers ...

Sorry, I didn't found an English article about this guy, but just use google translator ... should do the job.

I was fascinated of his idea and his place!
