eh, I think there are many ways to make us become mature, and marriage is NOT the most cost-effective way among them all because of the risks involved (ie, you could ruin lives (<--- note, plural) during the process). So, I say one should get married after she/he has become mature, not the other way around. Let me share with you a quote from my favorite TV sitcom, Seinfeld:

Quote:

...Marriage? Family?...They're prisons. Man made prisons. You're doing time. You get up in the morning. She's there. You go to sleep at night. She's there...

My point is you need certain level of maturity before you can see pass marriage & family as man-made prisons :P
