Happiness is the smile that appears on your face when someone you love walks through the door.

Your sister

Your brother

Your mother, father, uncle or aunt

Your dear friend

But most of all, the smile that appears when the one you love appears through that door.

Where can we find happiness when we look up and down?

to or left, or to our right.

All you truly have to do is look in the mirror and see that smile on your face with the absence of a frown.

Look around and you will see that happiness can always be found in you and me.

Never let go, always hold tight to those you love and care about for their happiness is yours to.

Happiness can be part of our everyday life if you just smile and reach out with your heart, never give up, and reach out to those you love.

So let us always hope that happiness never goes away.
