A: May I help you?

B: Yes, I get got married recently so I'll buy a house. And my name is Emily Li. Just call me Mrs. Li.

A: Mrs. Li, do you have any desire to buy a country house?

B: Yes No. Actually I lived in a country town before.

A: I think the air is was fresh there.

B: That's right. Although it's it was quiet and not so crowded, living there is was not convenient.

A: I guess so. The traffic is was not convenient there, right?

B: Yeah, so my husband and I decided to move to the city.

A: That will be great.

B: We want to buy a house near by nearby the MRT station. And it better has a parking lot.

A: Oh, there are just two houses nearby the MRT station and each has a parking lot.

B: That's nice. How much are they?

A: One sells at 3 millions. The other one sells at 2.5 millions.

B: What's different the difference?

A: The price One is more expensive than the other.

B: HAHA. I know.

A: Actually the sizes is bigger are different. One is 30 pings, and the other is 25 pings.

B: Uh...how many rooms do they have?

A: Both Either of two houses has three rooms. And each house has a full kitchen, living room, and a bath room with a full bath.

B: Ok.

A: Just one house is more spacious.

B: Oh...I see.

A: Ok. Do you have any further question?

B: No, that's all.

A: So which What is your final choice?

B: Uh...I think I'll take the price is cheaper one.

A: Why?

B: I think it's almost the same. Just the size is different.

A: Ok. You can pay 5 millions half a million in advance for down payment. We can make a contract in my office.

B: OK.

A: Follow me, please.
