Guess the two connote different meanings.

1) "dialectic" is "è¾~è"¼"; "é,•è¼~è«—è"¼"ā€,

2) "æ-»é'žæ'•é£~è“‘" means "to refuse to admit that one is evidently wrong and keep on arguing".

Perhaps, one can use the word "dialectic" to "beautify" one's "æ-»é'žæ'•é£~è“‘" behaviour.

As for "æ-»ç%oo'ä,€é,Šé ,":

= "be hell-bent on having one's own way"

= "be as stubborn as a mule"

= "be stiff-necked"

= "stick to one's guns"

= "unreasonably, often perversely unyielding"

= "bullheaded"
