One afternoon, a cat saw a mouse and started to chase him. The mouse got away by running into his mouse hole. The cat then waited for the mouse to come out.

The mouse knew the cat was outside. But suddenly, he heard barking. He thought a dog had scared the cat away, so he came out. At that moment, the cat caught the mouse. The mouse was surprised.

"How can you bark like a dog?" he asked.

"In today's global village," the cat said, "everyone should speak a second language!"

In that case, I think I should learn a second language well.
