

Forum: Gossip ĭ¼ ě-è•Šĭ¼%o

Topic: Is it necessary to throw toilet papers into the toilet?

Subject: Re: Is it necessary to throw toilet papers into the toilet?

Posted by: 123

Posted on: 2009/2/17 22:07:05

Quote:

Yunqing wrote:

Quote:

SoutheLily wrote:

Quote:

123 wrote:

Is it necessary to throw toilet papers into the toilet?

The waste toilet tissues are supposed to get flushed away instead of in the trash bin. But too many toilet are not built correctly, this you need to ask our wonderful government why, if you ask me why, well, tell me why the roads can have so many man holes and become so dangerous for motorcycles.

I definitely agree with SoutheLily. It's the problem with the sewer systems of the toilets. I had went to countries where toilet papers are thrown in rubbish bin (and without cover lid). It's smelly and dirty, plus..it can be quite a gross scene too.

In many places, such as SG...toilet papers are thrown into the toilet bowl. The "rubbish bin" beside it is meant for ladies to throw their sanitary pads, not toilet papers.

So Kathy, to answer your question, the issue now is whether the toilet sewer system can handle the toilet papers. If they can't, then the toilet bowls will clog easily. Necessary or not, it really depends on which toilet bowl u're using.

Thank you, yun.