

Forum: Chinese "¼ a,-æ-‡"¼ c Topic: å ‡å±±å³»å¶°èŒ,æž—è,,©ç«¹ Subject: Re: å ‡å±±å³»å¶°èŒ,æž—è,,©ç«¹

Posted by: Anonymous

Posted on: 2006/11/20 12:40:52

Hello All Enthusiasts

Here it comes!

The following †match' is provided by a friend's friend; an associate professor of the School of Humanities & Social Sciences, Division of Chinese Studies, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore.

 $\mathring{a}' + \mathring{a} + \mathring{a}^3 \mathring{a}^0 \mathring{e}CE, \cancel{x} - \mathring{e}, \cancel{x}$

The lecturer says that his match was thought out on the basis of balancing the descriptive scene of the â€~high mountains and lofty peaks garbed with exuberant growth of trees and bamboos'.

He also says that his isn't a perfect match in accordance with the rules of couplets (echoing Glotynn's standpoint on tones etc.), but merely trying to harmonize the phrase by  touching-up' mother's nature with joie de vivre at dawn and sunset, and the ambience of spring and autumn.

He adds that Wang Xizhi was a master of poetry of all times; and that Wang's works are consequential to the many idioms we use today.

It is no wonder that the philosophy of one century is the common knowledge of the next!