Dongzhi

The traditional East Asian calendars divide a year into 24 solar terms (ç€œæ°£). Dǒngzhì (pǎnyǎn) or Tǎnji (rǎmaji) (Chinese and Japanese: à†-è†³; Korean: ë™ìš€; Vietnamese: Äng chǎ; literally: "winter solstice") is the 22nd solar term. It begins when the Sun reaches the celestial longitude of 270° and ends when it reaches the longitude of 285°. It more often refers in particular to the day when the Sun is exactly at the celestial longitude of 270°. In the Gregorian calendar, it usually begins around December 21 (December 22 East Asia time) and ends around January 5.

In China, Dongzhi was originally celebrated as an end-of-harvest festival. Today, it is observed with a family reunion over the long night, when pink and white tangyuan are eaten in sweet broth to symbolise family unity and prosperity.
