So, folks, it is about politics, I don't really know if it is accepted here - Tim å...^ç"Ÿ, just delete this post if you feel it does not suit the site.

I've ever enjoyed listening to Hungarian artists, writers, song writers etc. telling stories about how they got around censorship before 1989 (the year when "communism" collapsed here). Actually censorship is one of the less intelligent phenomena by nature, and not only ethically (some say ethics is a part of intelligence), but also technically:

I am reading an article on cnd.org (<http://cnd.org/my/modules/wfsection/article.php%3Farticleid=37933>), which is an unblocked site in the mainland, but - funny - the site they got the article from (www.open.com.hk) is a blocked one...
