Guess the two connote different meanings.

1) "dialectic" is "è¾`è`¼"; "é,•è¼`è«—è`¼"ā€,

2) "æ-»éžæ'•é£`è“ç" means "to refuse to admit that one is evidently wrong and keep on arguing".

Perhaps, one can use the word "dialectic" to "beautify" one's "æ-»éžæ'•é£`è“ç" behaviour.

As for "æ-»ç%oožæ'•é£,Šéç":

= "be hell-bent on having one's own way"

= "be as stubborn as a mule"

= "be stiff-necked"

= "stick to one's guns"

= "unreasonably, often perversely unyielding"

= "bullheaded"
