Rita it is not important that everyone read what I write, to tell you the truth if just one person reads what I have written and enjoyed it or learned from it I would be happy. I simply write to express my feelings, thoughts and care.

Maybe just one person will do something, or write something or even learn something, could I ask for more. I dont think I would because I would be happy.

By the way one more thing..... you dont have to tell someone directly how you feel, you can take little steps to tell them and when you are sute you both feel the same. It does not matter how you say what you have to say.... communication is important in every aspect of a relationship, just telling someone how you feel or love them is just a small part of what try communication is for a couple
